

14th Summer Institute on Migration and Global Health

July 10-13, 2019

Oakland & Berkeley CA, USA

Migration is a complex phenomenon that has become an integral part of the modern world. International migration has substantially increased during recent years, driven by economic disparities, violence, and globalization among other factors. Currently there are an estimated 244 million international migrants in the world, and they face particular health challenges and conditions.

The Summer Institute on Migration and Global Health is an international event that provides an inter-disciplinary applied research platform for migration and global health, that includes public health, public policy, and social science perspectives.

Who should attend: Researchers, faculty, graduate students, and professionals working with or interested in migrant communities.

Format: The four-day course includes a combination of lectures, workshops, poster sessions, and field trips, to offer an exceptional opportunity not only to learn but also to create professional networks. Live-streaming option available for remote participation during the plenary session days (July 10-12).

Location: The California Endowment Conference Center, Oakland, California & UC Berkeley School of Public Health.

More information and to Registration:

MigrationAndGlobalHealth.org

Topics

- Current and historical trends on migration and global health
- Refugee health
- Health response to mass migration in Latin America
- Research methodologies and data tools
- Global agenda on migrant health
- Occupational health
- Mental Health
- Climate change and migration
- Gender and geographic mobility

Organized by:

Berkeley Public Health

